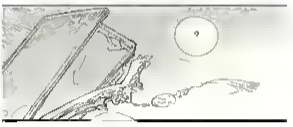
Interpreting Time, the Ancient Chinese Way

In ancient times, the Chinese used a 12-hour system to interpret time (in contrast to the 24-hour system that's used today). A day was divided into 12 2-hour time periods, and an animal from the Chinese zodiac was used to represent each time period.

ZODIAC ANIMAL	TIME PERIOD	CORRESPONDING HOURS
RAT	ZI (子)	11PM - 1AM
OX	CHOU (丑)	1AM - 3AM
TIGER	YIN (寅)	3AM - 5AM
RABBIT	MAO (卯)	5AM - 7AM
DRAGON	CHEN (辰)	7AM - 9AM
SNAKE	SI (巳)	9AM - 11AM
HORSE	WU (午)	11AM - 1PM
GOAT	WEI (未)	1PM - 3PM
MONKEY	SHEN (申)	3PM - 5PM
ROOSTER	YOU (酉)	5PM - 7PM
DOG	XU (戌)	7PM - 9PM
PIG	HAI (亥)	9PM - 11PM

Fallen Phoenix(落凤)



Another 3x3-reference
For the Ten-Thousand Flowers Sect
there are 2 routes you can go
"Huaqian" (Attack class)
or "Liqing" (Healer class)

Sun Tuo's staff (Fallen Phoenix) is a high level "Huaqian" weapon.

Scented satchet(香囊)

A scented sachet: a small cloth bag stuffed with aromatic herbs. The bags are sometimes embroidered in exquisite patterns. During the Dragon Boat Festival, young children wore beautiful and elegant scented sachets to ward off evil. It was believed that the medicinal properties and the smells of the herbs used could drive off harmful insects)

In the Han Dynasty, both boys and girls wore scented sachets, but this became a practice that was only associated with women in the Song and Tang dynasties. They were regarded as love tokens in the Qing Dynasty

Hair

In ancient China,
hair was considered to be a highly precious legacy from one's parents. The cutting of one's hair was reserved for special occasions
like weddings or as penalties for minor crimes.
Back then, a lock of hair given to one's sweetheart was a big deal, for they symbolized a lover's token. Some couples that had to be apart for long intervals of time
kept their lover's hair in a scented sachet,
so that they could keep an intimate part of their lovers close by wherever they went.

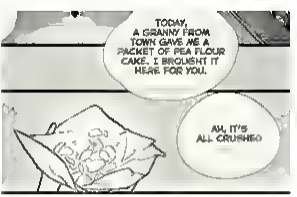
Other ancient love tokens include:
Jade, hairpins, combs, bracelets,
and handkerchiefs.

Pea Flour Cake(豌豆黄)



A notable sweet
from Beijing made from white peas.
It's often eaten during Spring and Summer
Bright yellow in colour, with a smooth,
delicate texture and a mild, sweet taste
